Sergt. Patrick Lane came next.

He told the same old story, varying it only to the effect that the Captain directed his men to keep a strict surveillance over all disorderly houses or suspected houses.

President Martin asked if there were any arrests from Mrs. Thurow's house in November and December, 1832, the time timmediately after the house had been raided and all hands fined in Special Sessions.

"I don't know," replied the sergeant.

"The record shows that there were less than usual during those months. Can rou explain that? asked the President.

The sergeant couldn't explain it, but it is claimed that a part of the "protection" system provides for the raiding of protected houses occasionally, when public opinion gets too hot, and that after the raid public opinion having been cooled off the "protected" are given special immunity for a time.

Several days ago an employee in the Park Department told Capt. Collins, of the Park police, that tin-rocting was being stolen almost daily from the department repair shops, on the Transverse road, at Eighty-second street. Since then the captain has maintained a watch on the shops only leaving when releved by Sergt. Dillon.

From their place of observation they saw workmen take a lot of old tin and roll it up in a bundle alongside of the driveway. The old tin had been taken from the roofs of buildings in the park and replaced by new.

While the rergenat was on watch, at a clock yesterday afternoon, he saw Burke drive a truck alongside of the pile of tin. He then saw Thomas F. Kane, a tinsmith in the employ of the Park Department, load a quantity of the tin pon the truck, after which Burke drove away.

The sergeent followed the truck in a baundry wagon until it reached Eighth avenue, and there placed him under arrest. The thismith disappeared and Burke drove back to the Arsenal, where he made a statement implicating Kane. Hurke was locked up for the night and this morning a charge of farceny was made against him. As the case was being heard, Kane, the tinsmith, came into court to see what would become of Burke. Sergt. Dillon at once placed him under arrest.
